

SARAH CLASBY ENGEL

Commercial Litigation, Class Action Litigation
Harke & Clasby LLP

Sarah Clasby Engel has spent 15 years as a litigator. "I love being a lawyer and helping my clients solve problems," she says. "Our class action practice always presents me not only with interesting new issues and legal challenges but also a sense of accomplishment when we are able to help protect consumers."

While representing a class of owners of low-income housing, Engel recently obtained a court finding that her clients have a right to sue the government due to failure to timely pay rent. "This is the first known ruling of its kind in the country and is an important step in maintaining the availability of affordable housing in Miami-Dade County," she says.

For ten years, Engel has been an active member of the Junior League of Miami, Inc., which focuses on issues such as homelessness, children's education, health and providing support to families. She is also a volunteer for "Project Lift," which physically moves women from the Lotus House shelter to their own apartments and sets them up with all the necessary donated supplies to make an apartment a home. She served on the 2009 host committee of "Life to the Fullest Power," a national pilot project for the March of Dimes. ■

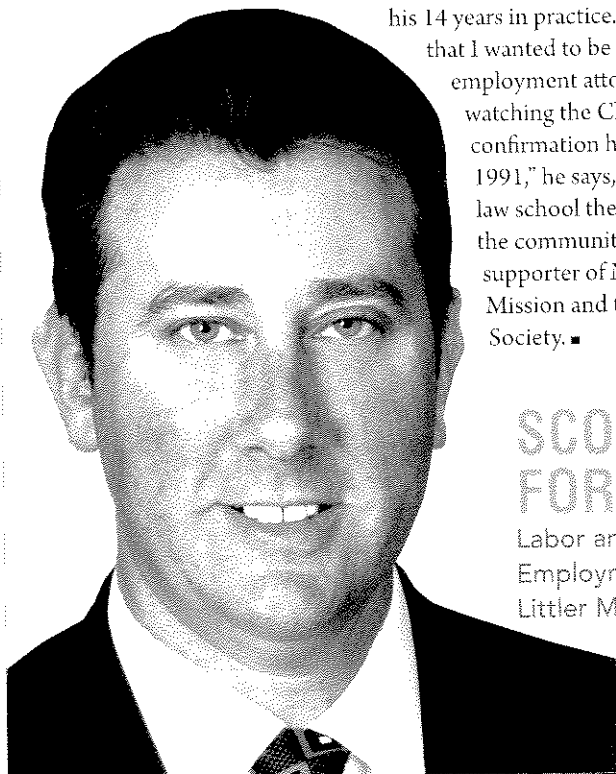

Anne Marie Estevez is a national class action labor and employment lawyer with 16 years experience. She recently defeated or had class claims abandoned in five 2009 cases. She is also an active supporter of St. Jude's Hospital and Girl Scouts of America. ■

ANNE MARIE ESTEVEZ

Labor and Employment
Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP

Scott A. Forman has successfully tried more than 20 jury trials to verdict in his 14 years in practice. "I decided that I wanted to be a labor and employment attorney after watching the Clarence Thomas confirmation hearings in 1991," he says, "and I started law school the next year. In the community, Forman is a supporter of Miami Beach Mission and the Humane Society. ■

SCOTT A. FORMAN

Labor and Employment
Littler Mendon &